GERMANS HINT CRETE MAY BE NEXT ON BLITZ SCHEDULE

RELENTLESS EFFORT BEING MADE TO CUT OFF ESCAPE OF B. E. F.

British, German speedboats battle as Nazis attack along England's southeast "invasion" coast; big guns duel across channel. Germans shell Dover nearly six hours; RAF bombers pound Nazi gun emplacements on French coast; Luftwaffe night raiders attack Plymouth, British hit Brest docks. Germans hint Crete next on blitz schedule; Nazi invaders pursue B. E. F. troops into southern half of Grecian Peloponnesus; British withdrawal from mainland continues. London says British patrols check Axis columns driving into Egypt; Rome, Berlin assert heavy losses inflicted on British in Salum area.

RETREATING ALLIES ARE HOTLY PURSUED IN LOWER PELOPONNESUS

Berlin, April 29—(P)—Informed sources said tonight that German troops were "approaching the last harbors in extreme southern and southwestern Greece." These harbors were described as the only ones available for removing the remainder of the British and Greek forces still fighting in Greece. The high command had said only that the Germans were reaching into the southern half of the Peloponnesus in their pursuit of the Allies.

Berlin, April 29—German forces have plunged into the southern half of the Peloponnesus in pursuit of retreating British and Greek troops, the Nazi high command announced today. By all indications, Crete, Greece's largest island and now seat of her government and base for the British, is next in line for attack after the mainland mop-up. The "mopping up" today's communique said, had progressed beyond Tripolis, in the heart of the Peloponnesus. While Nazi land forces were in hot pursuit of the Allies, the high command said the Luftwaffe sank five ships aggregating 18,600 tons and damaged a number of smaller vessels in Greek waters yesterday in a relentless effort to cut off escape of the British expeditionary force.

In North Africa, the High Command said, "new and considerable losses" have been inflicted on the British by Axis forces driving into Imperial lines in the Salum region of Egypt, just across from the Libyan border. Luftwaffe raids on Malta last night, it asserted, resulted in a direct hit amidships on a British cruiser of the Southampton class with a heavy-caliber bomb. A merchant ship and oil depot were reported set afire. Plymouth was singled out for last night's major attack against England and numerous fires and considerable destruction were claimed. The harbor area of great Yarmouth, a factory on the Scottish east coast, coal docks, railroads and troop camps in the Peterhead region were targets of other night assaults. At one raided airport in southwest England, the High Command said, bombs burst among parked planes and hangars, and munitions dumps went up in flames. Two merchant ships totalling 10,000 tons were destroyed, the High Command said, by air bombs east of Dundee, Scotland, and southeast of Lowestoft.

Nine British planes were declared downed over the channel and North Sea yesterday and last night. The High Command said one British plane flew over northwest Germany's coast yesterday and dropped bombs which caused slight damage.

Yokosuka, Beobachter, Adolf Hitler's newspaper, declared "Crete no longer is a pleasant anchoring place for English warships." The newspaper pointed out that every mile of the Nazi advance across the Peloponnesus brings Crete with its big Suda Bay naval base, into closer and more effective range of Greek-based German bombers.

The long, narrow island extends from 70 to 160 miles southeast of Laconia, the nearest part of the Peloponnesus, Suda Bay is 100 miles from Laconia. (Greek Premier Emmanuel Tsouderos declared at Canea, (Turn To Page Nine)

Berlin, April 29—(P)—Adolf Hitler declared today in a Sports-palast speech to 9,000 young army, navy, air force and SS (Elite Guard) officers that "wherever an embattled German officer stands he can be sure there constantly will be German musketeers at his side."

Berlin, April 29—(P)—Several British speedboats were damaged early this morning in a battle with similar German craft which underlaid an attack along the southeast coast of England, DNB, official German news agency, reported.

Rome, April 29—(P)—A joint German-Italian-Japanese commission created to carry out provisions of the three-powers pact met today, an official announcement said, to consider military, political and economic problems arising under the alliance.

This was the scene at St. Louis, Mo., in June, 1927, as Secretary of War Dwight Davis (back to camera) presented a colonel's commission in the U. S. Army Air Corps Reserve to young Charles A. Lindbergh, just back from an Atlantic solo flight. Now the famed Lone Eagle has resigned his commission because of President Roosevelt's criticism.

Flying Colonel Is Severely Rebuked By Secretary Early

Washington, April 29—(P)—The War Department announced today that Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's resignation as a reserve air corps officer had been accepted. Washington, April 29—(P)—Stephen Early, presidential secretary, said today that Charles A. Lindbergh had resigned as a reserve colonel in the army air corps "because he was not returning his decoration to Mr. Hitler." Early referred to an honorary award for service to aviation given Lindbergh on a visit to Germany several years ago. The White House official also was sharp-spoken in saying that Lindbergh had resigned as a reserve colonel in the army air corps "because he was not returning his decoration to Mr. Hitler." Lindbergh gave out the letter yesterday in New York, notifying the president he was resigning his commission in the air corps reserve because of implications which he said the chief executive had made concerning his loyalty, character, and motives. Early said that while the newspapers printed Lindbergh's letter of resignation yesterday, "it has not yet been received" at the White House. (Turn To Page Nine)

SUPREME WAR CABINET IDEA IS TURNED DOWN

London, April 29—(P)—Prime Minister Churchill turned down today a suggestion that he form a streamlined supreme war cabinet, and he announced that full dress war debate would be held in Commons next week. The House greeted with loud cheers Churchill's announcement that it would be offered the following motion for debate: "That this house approves the policy of the government in sending help to Greece and declares its confidence that our operations in the Middle East and all other theaters of war will be pursued by the government with utmost vigor." Churchill said that if the House wished the debate could be extended over two days, explaining that the government had arranged debate on the first sitting day after this week. He indicated that Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden, whose trip to the Balkans and the Middle East preceded the Greek campaign, would "take an important part" in the discussion. Eden is expected to report on his diplomatic efforts in the Middle East to build up a front against the Axis. Churchill replied, "No sir," to a question whether he would consider appointing a small supreme war council without departmental responsibilities.

SOUTHERN RATE WILL BE RAISED

End of Month-Old Deadlock Is Buoyant News to Worried Defense Officials by Promising Speedy Replenishment of Dwindling Fuel Supplies Which Threatened to Cause Major Curtailment of Arms Production

PLAN OF PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT ACCEPTED

Washington, April 29—(P)—The United Mine Workers union announced today that soft coal production would be resumed Thursday morning in the nation's bituminous fields shut down since April 1 in a dispute over a new wage contract. The announcement was made by a spokesman for union president John L. Lewis after he had discussed with his district presidents in the Appalachian coal area the decision of southern producers last night to accept President Roosevelt's proposal to reopen the mines. The union said it had received the notice from L. Eberole Gaines, chairman of the southern producers' group, that the latter was willing to negotiate a new two-year agreement with the miners' union to be made retroactive to the date of resumption of coal production. The southern operators unexpectedly agreed to a $1-a-day wage boost pending the final contract settlement. Union officials said the reopening of the mines was scheduled for Thursday instead of Wednesday because Thursday is the beginning of a payroll period in the mines. If production started Wednesday, they said, it would mean that the operators would have to make up a payroll for one day instead of a full pay period. The end of the month-old deadlock was buoyant news to worried defense officials, for it promised speedy replenishment of the dwindling fuel supplies which threatened to cause major curtailment of arms production in vital defense plants.

The soft coal mines in the eight state Appalachian area and outlying districts which produce approximately 11,000,000 tons a week, were expected to go back into production as soon as John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers Union and the northern and southern producers can complete the details of getting miners back into the pits. The break in the coal wage contract was announced today. MUSIC DISPUTE CONSIDERED BY SUPREME COURT

Washington, April 29—(P)—Litigation to test the constitutionality of state laws permitting public performance of copyrighted music whenever the original purchase price had been paid came before the supreme court today for argument. The controversy grew out of the attempt by the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers (ASCAP) to control prices charged for public playing of music produced by members of the organization. At issue specifically was validity of legislation passed by Nebraska and Florida in an effort to regulate what was described as monopolistic practices by the society. This legislation, passed in 1937 in both states, was held unconstitutional by three-judge federal courts on the ground that it infringed rights granted by the national copyright act. Also involved in the arguments was validity of a 1939 Florida law requiring registration with the state comptroller of a list of all music copyrights and imposing a 2 percent tax on gross license fees. This was upheld except for two provisions. Anti-trust proceedings brought by the Justice Department against ASCAP recently were settled by (Turn To Page Nine)

Uniontown Planning For Americanism Day

Uniontown, April 29—(P)—A motor cavalcade of more than 50 persons will go to Harrisburg tomorrow to participate in ceremonies to celebrate "Americanism Day," which is reputed to have had its birth here eight years ago. Governor Arthur H. James recently signed a resolution proclaiming May 1 as Americanism Day and "calling upon all patriotic veteran, fraternal and civic organizations" to hold celebrations. Three residents of Uniontown claim to have originated the idea for such a day while discussing a counter-demonstration for a threatened Communist "May Day" celebration. Each May 1 since, a similar parade has been held, with the one set for next Thursday here to be the largest one yet.

JONES PREDICTS NINETY BILLION NATIONAL DEBT

Cabinet Official, in Address To U. S. Chamber of Commerce, Says Much More Must Be Appropriated for National Defense

Washington, April 29—(P)—Jesse Jones forecast today that the national debt would mount to at least $90,000,000,000, and declared "we have not yet made any sacrifices." "But they are in store for us, plenty of them," the secretary of commerce added in an address prepared for the annual convention of the United States Chamber of Commerce. "A few months ago we were worrying about whether we could afford to increase government borrowing authority above $45,000,000,000," Jones recalled. "It seems probable now that it will grow to at least double that amount, even allowing for paying as much of this extraordinary cost as our economy can stand from current taxes."

"Frankly, it has never occurred to me that we could not carry a national debt equal to a year's income, and as we build the national income we can carry more debt. "But whatever amount we have to borrow, we must commence to pay back the day the emergency is over." The cabinet official declared that "much more" money will be appropriated for national defense within the next four years, and pointed out that the cost of maintaining the army and navy will mount as the organizations are expanded. "We are just now beginning to have some idea," he said, "of what all this is going to cost—but only a rough idea, because it will cost more than we now think."

The Chamber of Commerce was expected to endorse an emergency federal fiscal policy of greatly increased taxes, drastic economies in non-defense expenditures, and sale of government bonds direct to the public, where possible, instead of to banks. Although informed officials forecast that the statement of the chamber's attitude on taxation (Turn To Page Nine)

ISLANDS "BY PASS" TO EGYPT

Attempt on Part of Reich To Use Ports in Aegean Sea as Stepping Stones Around Turkey in Drive Aimed at Syria and the Suez Canal Suggested by British as Logical Sequence to Successes

THRUST AT GIBRALTAR BELIEVED PROBABLE

London, April 29—(P)—A German attempt to use Greek islands in the Aegean sea as stepping stones to "by pass" Turkey in a drive aimed at Syria and the Suez Canal was suggested today by British observers as a logical sequence to Nazi successes in Greece. First steps toward such a "leap-frog" movement already have been taken by the Germans, it was pointed out, with occupation of the islands of Thasso, Samothrace and Lemnos in the northern Aegean. From Lemnos, the fabled isles of Greece extend southward at short intervals for some 200 miles down the coast of Turkey, offering a natural bridge to the Italian-occupied Dodecanese islands. Rhodes, largest of the latter, is less than 350 miles from Alexandria, Egypt, and about 450 miles from the nearest point in Syria. British observers expressed belief a German thrust at Suez from this direction would be accompanied by an assault upon Gibraltar and an intensified Axis thrust at Egypt from Libya. Commenting upon the situation, the News Chronicle saw definite indications of a German attempt to establish a link with the Dodecanese. "If the Germans can establish air bases down the west coast of Turkey," the paper said, "and if their agents in Syria have done their work, they may be able to by-pass Turkey." During the night, British bombers attacked docks at Brest, often bombing naval bases where the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have been the particular targets of the Royal Air (Turn To Page Nine)

"Back to Work" Order Awaited at the Mines

Pittsburgh, April 29—(P)—Operators and mine union leaders today expressed belief that soft coal mines, closed a month by a wage dispute, would swing into full production or the first of the week if a "back to work" order is issued immediately. Both sides awaited the outcome of a meeting of the joint scale committee of the United Mine Workers and operators in Washington, where final details for resumption of work were to be drawn following the agreement of southern operators to renew operations. Production of coke, essential to the steel industry, was another problem. Most of the beehive ovens in the Connelsville region of southwestern Pennsylvania, where the bulk of the beehive coke is produced, have been permitted to cool. Estimates on the time required for reheating the ovens and resuming coke production ranged from 72 hours to 10 days.

Three Divisions Start Solicitation and Another Ready to Start in Chest Drive

With three divisions starting their solicitation today and another to get under way tomorrow morning, the Warren Community Chest campaign for $41,500 is already moving forward. It was stated this morning by the Rev. E. Pinkney Wroth, Chest president. The professional division under the chairmanship of E. H. Ley held its initial meeting this morning at 9:30 o'clock in campaign headquarters, at which time prospect lists were assigned and solicitation started. The automotive division, headed by B. S. Keane, held a meeting at the Conwago Club at 12:15 o'clock this afternoon, when plans for this group's solicitation were completed. At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon, the industrial division under the chairmanship of H. W. Conarro, is holding a group conference, at which the solicitation for the largest division in the Community Chest campaign will be started. Tomorrow morning, at eight o'clock, the mercantile division will hold its kickoff breakfast. This group, under the leadership of T. L. Armstrong, will solicit the larger retail establishments, hotels, restaurants, etc. While these divisions were preparing to start active solicitation, H. N. Elmquist, chairman of the finance division, announced the appointment of his committeemen. They are E. W. Johnson, L. A. Branch, C. A. Erickson, W. H. Alexander, H. T. Flowers and H. M. Boyd. Mr. Wroth today pointed out that it will be necessary for many persons in the community to increase their contributions this year if the goal of the chest is to be reached. He stated that a study of the cards from last year produced a total of $39,454, which means that an increase of $2,046, or approximately six percent, is necessary to reach this year's goal of $41,500. It is recognized that some individuals and firms have been giving up to their limit in the past and from this group a six percent increase cannot be expected. Mr. (Turn To Page Nine)

BIG GUNS SHELL THE DOVER AREA FOR SIX HOURS

London, April 29.—(P)—For nearly six hours today German guns on the French coast shelled the Dover area—the heaviest such cross-channel action of the war—and the sort to be expected with any invasion attempt.

British guns replied, making it a mammoth duel across some 20 miles of water, and the RAF dropped out to blast at the Nazi emplacements.

The British Press Association reported at 3:59 p. m. (9:59 a. m. EST.) that the shelling had stopped and added that damage to that southeastern corner of England—long known as "Hell's Corner"—was negligible, confined to cottages.

LINDBERGH CALLED "VOICE OF DICTATORS"

Harrisburg, April 29.—(P)—Delegates attending the 12th annual convention of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches turned their attention today to the church's part in a "world at war" after hearing Col. Charles A. Lindbergh described as the "voice of the dictators."

The charge was made last night by the Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, president of the World Christian Endeavor Union and pastor of the Baptist Temple, Philadelphia. The conference concludes tonight.

Dr. Poling, saying he "regretted" Col. Lindbergh had "said what he did" declared that unity in the nation today "must be of such a quality as to strengthen us all and mould all our differences into one united church."

SEIZED FOREIGN VESSELS MAY BE RE CONDITIONED

Washington, April 29.—(P)—The Maritime Commission was reported ready today to prepare the 39 recently seized Axis ships for service in the event of a formal government order to take them.

At least two-thirds of the German and Italian vessels were salvaged by their crews before cast-iron guardsmen took them into protective custody a month ago. Since that time maritime engineers have surveyed the ships carefully and outlined just what needs to be done to restore them to operating condition.

The administration has yet to make an official disclosure of its plans for the ultimate disposition of the seized merchantmen, but there were some grounds for the belief that a decision might be forthcoming soon. At the time of the seizure, one high official said that the government probably would hold the ships for 30 days or so and then re-evaluate the situation to determine what can be done with them.

While Leaders Have Bottled Budget in House, Republicans in Senate Are Equally Unsympathetic To Opposition Bills

PLANS ARE CHANGED

Harrisburg, April 29.—(P)—A Democratic demand in the Pennsylvania Senate for an immediate reduction in taxes was followed quickly today by the House majority's decision to wait another week before releasing the Republican administration's tax bills from committee.

Senator Harry Shapiro (D-Phila.) declared revenue from the so-called emergency taxes in 1940 would exceed 1939 by as much as 60 percent. He asserted Governor James underestimated the return from the corporate net income tax by $25,000,000.

This was the reason, Shapiro told the Senate, that the Democrats controlling the House have held the James budget in committee since February "until we determined if a tax reduction is not possible." He said that Governor James might be considering a special session of the legislature "around election time" to make a tax cut. Any reduction should be made "now," Shapiro said.

Soon after the senator made his declaration, Rep. Leo A. Achterman (D-Monroe), majority floor leader in the House, said the announced intention to report the tax bills out this week had been changed.

Replying to Shapiro, Republican Floor Leader James A. Geltz said in the Senate the Democrats "just can't stand the thought that Governor James might receive credit for some reduction of taxes. The governor said yesterday a reduction could be made not if some of the cost of relief were returned to the counties."

While the Democrats have bottled the budget in the House, Republicans in the Senate have been (Turn To Page Nine)

Attempt on Part of Reich To Use Ports in Aegean Sea as Stepping Stones Around Turkey in Drive Aimed at Syria and the Suez Canal Suggested by British as Logical Sequence to Successes

THRUST AT GIBRALTAR BELIEVED PROBABLE

London, April 29.—(P)—A German attempt to use Greek islands in the Aegean sea as stepping stones to "by pass" Turkey in a drive aimed at Syria and the Suez Canal was suggested today by British observers as a logical sequence to Nazi successes in Greece.

First steps toward such a "leap-frog" movement already have been taken by the Germans, it was pointed out, with occupation of the islands of Thasso, Samothrace and Lemnos in the northern Aegean.

From Lemnos, the fabled isles of Greece extend southward at short intervals for some 200 miles down the coast of Turkey, offering a natural bridge to the Italian-owned Dodecanese islands.

Rhodes, largest of the latter, is less than 350 miles from Alexandria, Egypt, and about 450 miles from the nearest point in Syria.

British observers expressed belief a German thrust at Suez from this direction would be accompanied by an assault upon Gibraltar and an intensified Axis thrust at Egypt from Libya.

Commenting upon the situation, the News Chronicle saw definite indications of a German attempt to establish a link with the Dodecanese.

"If the Germans can establish air bases down the west coast of Turkey," the paper said, "and if their agents in Syria have done their work, they may be able to by-pass Turkey."

During the night, British bombers attacked docks at Brest, often-bombed naval base where the German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau have been the particular targets of the Royal Air (Turn To Page Nine)

"Back to Work" Order Awaited at the Mines

Pittsburgh, April 29.—(P)—Operators and mine union leaders today expressed belief that soft coal mines, closed a month by a wage dispute, could swing into full production or the first of the week if a "back to work" order is issued immediately.

Both sides awaited the outcome of a meeting of the joint scale committee of the United Mine Workers and operators in Washington, where final details for resumption of work were to be drafted following the agreement of southern operators to renew operations.

Production of coke, essential to the steel industry, was another problem. Most of the beehive ovens in the Connellsville region of southwestern Pennsylvania, where the bulk of the beehive coke is produced, have been permitted to cool.

Estimates on the time required for re-heating the ovens and resuming coke production ranged from 72 hours to 10 days.

Mr. Wroth today pointed out that it will be necessary for many persons in the community to increase their contributions this year if the goal of the chest is to be reached.

He stated that a study of the cards from last year produced a total of $39,454, which means that an increase of $2,346, or approximately six percent, is necessary to reach this year's goal of $41,800.

It is recognized that some individuals and firms have been giving up to their limit in the past and from this group a six percent increase cannot be expected, Mr. (Turn To Page Nine)

PROTECTIVE ESCORT IS GIVEN FIRST LADY

Los Angeles, April 29.—(P)—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt was given a protective escort of secret service men and police for her lecture appearance at Philharmonic auditorium last night.

Capt. R. E. Giese of the homicide squad said plain clothesmen were assigned to the hall after an anonymous letter had reported it would be "planted for peace". There was no disturbance.

In her informal question and answer period, the first lady was asked "do you think the president will keep his promise and keep us out of war?"

"He hasn't made any such promise," Mrs. Roosevelt replied. "He has said he wants peace. If it is possible to stay at peace, we will do so... but the ultimate decision rests with the people."

The purpose of this project is to determine in what homes there might be children, or even parents, who do not attend Sunday school or to determine where the church could be of assistance to the community in other ways.

This church is also planning to hold a "family reunion" picnic school for two weeks, starting June 9 in the church. This will be open to all children, regardless of denomination, and to secure names for the school will be another purpose of the survey.

Rev. Martin Hamilton is pastor of Calvary church and is being assisted in these projects by the Sunday school superintendent, C. O. Swanson.

Girl Scouts and Leaders Attend Conference at Camp on Saturday

Thirty-nine senior Girl Scouts and leaders of senior troops met at Camp Birdsall Eddy on Saturday for a one-day conference. Four towns and five troops were represented. Kinzua, Ludlow, Tidoute and Warren.

Miss Lois Nystrom, of Jamestown, N. Y., was present at the morning session of the conference. For which Miss Kathryn Copeland was chairman; Miss Isabelle Rondinelli, vice chairman; Miss Genevieve Summerton, program chairman. These three girls are from Tidoute.

Troop 2, of Warren, was the hostess unit. Under the leadership of Miss Phyllis Hathaway and Miss Florence Wolkenroth, troop members arranged refreshments for outdoor cooking greeted guests and acted as models for the style show which followed the color ceremony.

Mrs. Henry Walker, instructor in aviation at the Warren airport, was the first speaker, talking on "Women in Aviation." Group discussions followed with Mrs. Thea Prendergast as leader for "Vocations" and Miss Dorothy Stout heading the group interested in "Good Grooming."

Luncheon was an outdoor meal, with each troop preparing its own repast. Troop 24, of Ludlow, opened the afternoon session with a clever stunt in which it extolled the merits of Girl Scout cookies in song, speech and dance.

Mrs. Robert Specht, assistant leader of Troop 17 at the South street school, told of the service Girl Guides in England are doing in the defense of their country and outlined the tasks which are in line with the Girl Scout program that are of vital importance in preparation for the defense of our own country.

A discussion on camping for senior Girl Scouts followed, with Mrs. A. N. Correll, county Girl Scout director, in charge. In answer to a request from this group, a small pioneer camping unit will be available this summer at camp. It will be open to not more than six girls at a time and only Girl Scouts 15 or more years of age will be eligible.

The meeting closed with a short walk along the river bank to observe wild flowers. Efforts are being made to increase the number of flowers at camp, seed has been sown and those already growing are protected.

Expressions of hope for future gatherings of the same nature indicate that the conference will be held annually, with a conference of senior girls from a larger area a possibility within the next two years.

SUCCESSFUL EVENT

The First Baptist church was filled nearly to capacity Sunday afternoon for the concert given by the a cappella choir of Edinboro State Teachers' College. The local choir, sponsors of the concert, served a buffet supper for the singers.

The declarer should infer from the bidding that South holds both minor aces, and his opening lead marks it as a singleton. Therefore, the declarer should plan to avoid the heart loser by an "elimination throw-in."

He wins the opening lead and takes two rounds of trumps. Now a club is led toward the king and it is immaterial whether South wins the first or second club. If he goes up with the ace and returns a club, dummy wins, declarer leads a trump back to his own hand and leads a diamond.

Again South has the choice of winning the first diamond trick or allowing it to hold and then winning the next two diamonds. But now he finds that East and West are void of diamonds and clubs and he has nothing else to lead. This allows the declarer to ruff in dummy and discard his losing heart.

You will notice that the committee directed the heart opening. This was done to give declarer a chance to make this play. We realized that if South opened a diamond, he could defeat the contract by taking the first club trick, cashing his diamond tricks and exiting with a club.

The Bucktail Chapter No. 93 Military Order of the Purple Heart wishes to publicly thank all the people "who cooperated" in making the benefit performance of "Land of Liberty" a grand success from the standpoint of our organization. While we did not make any money we certainly reached our objective in that over five hundred children saw this historical drama for a minimum of ten cents and carried out the cardinal principles of our organization in promoting patriotism and historical education as well as awakening the need of love of country.

Over one hundred essays were written by pupils in the public and parochial schools of Warren County on this subject "Why I Love Our Land of Liberty" with about twenty pupils receiving prizes for the best essays.

Special thanks are extended to the superintendents and teachers of the county and borough schools for the kind cooperation in the contest and project.

It would take a large space to mention everyone who kindly assisted but we wish to give special thanks to our advertisers, those who sold tickets and the General Joseph Warren Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution for their splendid work in promoting the sale of tickets as well as their moral support, the only organization which cooperated as such.

Girl Scouts and Leaders Attend Conference at Camp on Saturday

Thirty-nine senior Girl Scouts and leaders of senior troops met at Camp Birdall Eddy on Saturday for a one-day conference. Four towns and five troops were represented. Kinza, Ludlow, Tidoute and Warren.

Miss Lois Nystrom, of Jamestown, N. Y., was present at the morning session of the conference, for which Miss Kathryn Copeland was chairman. Miss Isabelle Rondinelli, vice chairman. Miss Genevieve Summerton, program chairman. These three girls are from Tidoute.

Troop 2, of Warren, was the hostess unit. Under the leadership of Miss Phyllis Hathaway and Miss Florence Wolstencroft, troop members arranged fireplaces for outdoor cooking, greeted guests and acted as models for the style show which followed the color ceremony.

Mrs. Henry Walker, instructor in aviation at the Warren airport, was the first speaker, talking on "Women in Aviation". Group discussions followed, with Mrs. Thelma Prendergast as leader for "Vocations" and Miss Dorothy Stout heading the group interested in "Good Citizenship".

Luncheon was an outdoor meal, with each troop preparing its own repast. Troop 24, of Ludlow, opened the afternoon session with a clever stunt in which it extolled the merits of Girl Scout cookies in song, speech and dance.

Mrs. Robert Specht, assistant leader of Troop 17 at the South street school, told of the service Girl Guides in England are doing in the defense of their country and outlined the tasks which are in line with the Girl Scout program that are of vital importance in preparation for the defense of our own country.

A discussion on camping for senior Girl Scouts followed, with Mrs. A. N. Correll, county Girl Scout director, in charge. In answer to a request from this group a small pioneer camping unit will be available this summer at camp. It will be open to not more than six girls at one time and only Girl Scouts 15 or more years of age will be eligible.

The meeting closed with a short walk along the river bank to observe wild flowers. Efforts are being made to increase the number of flowers at camp, seed has been sown and those already growing are protected.

Expressions of hope for future gatherings of the same nature indicate that the conference will be held annually, with a conference of senior girls from a larger area a possibility within the next two years.

AMERICA'S CARD AUTHORITY

The declarer should infer from the bidding that South holds both minor aces, and his opening lead of the seven of hearts probably marks it as a singleton. Therefore, the declarer should plan to avoid the heart loser by an "elimination throw-in."

He wins the opening lead and takes two rounds of trumps. Now a club is led toward the king, and it is immaterial whether South wins the first or second club. If he goes up with the ace and returns a club, dummy wins, declarer leads a trump back to his own hand and leads a diamond.

Again South has the choice of winning the first diamond trick or allowing it to hold and then winning the next two diamonds. But now he finds that East and West are void of diamonds and clubs and he has nothing else to lead. This allows the declarer to ruff in dummy and discard his losing heart.

You will notice that the committee directed the heart opening. This was done to give declarer a chance to make this play. We realized that if South opened a diamond, he could defeat the contract by taking the first club trick, cashing his diamond tricks and exiting with a club.

WHEAT FARMERS GET ALLOTMENT

Pennsylvania wheat farmers who have planted in excess of their wheat acreage allotment will now have an opportunity to utilize the excess wheat acreage for soil-building purposes and thus become eligible for Agricultural Conservation Program and parity payments for wheat, according to a change in the 1941 wheat program just announced by the State Agricultural Conservation Office.

The change in the wheat program provides that, regardless of whether a farm is now classified as a wheat allotment or non-wheat allotment farm, it will be considered a non-allotment farm if the acreage planted in excess of the wheat acreage allotment is plowed down or otherwise utilized for soil-building purposes by clipping or leaving on the land. This must be done not later than May 25, 1941. If this is done, according to the announcement, any acreage in excess of the allotment-disposed of in this manner will not be classified as acreage planted to wheat.

If the acreage of wheat remaining on the farm after the deadline, May 25, 1941, is not in excess of the allotment-disposed of in this manner will not be classified as acreage planted to wheat. Wheat farmers who have planted in excess of their wheat allotment and wish to comply with this new provision should consult their local Agricultural Conservation Office. The Warren County Agricultural Conservation Office is located at Court House, Warren.

In making this announcement, the local County Agricultural Conservation Committee stated that provision will be important to wheat farmers in case wheat marketing quotas are in effect for the 1941 crop. Under marketing quota provisions, any producer may market, sell, or feed the wheat produced on his farm, without being required to store or pay the penalty on excess wheat, if the acreage planted to wheat does not exceed the farm acreage allotment.

HITLER'S NEXT MOVE

Analyzing the European developments after the fall of Athens and Churchill's memorable speech of Sunday, heard by many radio listeners in Warren, DeWitt Mac-Kenzie, Associated Press foreign writer, sums up the situation in the following manner:

British Prime Minister Churchill, in giving an accounting of his stewardship to his beleaguered people, declared that the war may spread, but that Hitler can win it only by conquering England herself, either by invasion or by cutting her ocean lifeline to the United States.

That victory does depend on subjugation of the British Isles—mainspring of Allied resistance—has come to be regarded almost as a truism by military experts, even in Berlin. It is significant, therefore, to see the Nazis apparently getting set for major operations in connection with the subsidiary battle of the Mediterranean. They no longer talk of a "blitzkrieg" in connection with England.

It is doubly interesting in view of the fact that even now Hitler's forces are swarming among the monuments of ancient Greek civilization, putting the finishing touches to the job of evicting the Allies from their last toehold on the European continent. That is, the last saw for the burning hearts of the many conquered peoples who are waiting for a chance to revolt against their German masters.

The fuhrer is ruler of that vast territory right up to the Russian border. And many observers express the belief that he is debating whether to strike at the Muscovites in an effort to extend his domination to them and gather to himself the riches of the Soviet Ukraine.

Why don't the Nazis devote their entire energy to the crushing of England, if the outcome of the war depends on this? Why waste golden hours on operations which admittedly are subsidiary to the main business in hand? The answer to this is twofold:

1. Despite the invincibility displayed by the German fighting machine on land, Hitler thus far hasn't developed the strength to crush Britain by blitzkrieg. Indeed, she has grown immeasurably stronger during the year in which he has been trying to knock her out.

2. The fuhrer needs to tap new sources of supply, for Europe is becoming a land of disorganization and want. Therefore the battle of the Mediterranean isn't by any means directed solely to the support of the assault on the British Isles. That is one purpose, of course, but the other is to get the oil of Iraq, the foodstuffs of the Near East, and the cotton of Egypt.

All this doesn't mean that there will be any slackening of the Nazi attack on Britain. However, despite the terrible inroads which Hitler is making on shipping, it takes a bit of time to sink the vast Allied merchant fleet.
And the English Channel, with its churning currents, presents a fierce barrier to invasion, especially since the Germans haven't the air control essential to this operation, which is considered one of the most difficult of military history.

Thus it is that the Nazis are making widespread preparations for extending the war in the Mediterranean theatre. The most active point at the moment is the Egyptian-Libyan border, where the Axis forces are increasing their pressure, and Saturday night crossed the frontier at several points. This thrust is a direct threat to Egypt and the Suez Canal—key positions in the British control of the Mediterranean.

With Turkish support of the Allies on the doubtful list, Britain's chief problem is to assemble quickly an army powerful enough to defend the canal and Egypt either from an Axis thrust from Libya or through Turkey, Syria and Palestine. It is quite possible that Hitler may undertake offensives against the canal from both the east and the west simultaneously, with the idea of getting the British in a vise.

If the Germans can secure passage through Turkey, either by consent or by force, the British will be on a tough spot, for the Nazi chief can throw a vast and powerfully equipped army against them.

Churchill asserted that "Hitler cannot find safety from avenging justice in the east, middle east or far east." It is true, as already pointed out, that the war cannot be won in the Mediterranean but it is equally true that the loss of Egypt and the Suez Canal would weaken Britain terribly.

PEACE ADVOCATES TAKE HEARTY ON NEW GAINS, PRE-PARE FOR THREE BIG BATTLES IN CONGRESS

Washington, April 29—One month ago the advocates of peace
for America had about given up.
The peace bill had gone through Congress by wide margins.
It looked as if the United States were headed for eventual war.

Today, these peace advocates have taken heart. They think now they have a 50-50 chance of keeping the country out of war. The next month or six weeks will give the answer.

It is a strange group that is clubbed together in this fellowship of peace. Officially, its spokesmen are Senators Wheeler and Nye, who have been barnstorming the country and drawing tremendous crowds. Unofficially, it has the American First Committee as its most active element. In Washington it has the peace lobby groups, the old National Council for Prevention of War and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and kindred organizations, a half dozen of which have formed a Keep America Out of War Congress for a four-day peace meeting in Washington on Decoration Day weekend. There are individualists like Colonel Lindbergh and Sinclair
Lewis, General Johnson and John T. Flynn who are star performers. There is a hodgepodge, including the Couching and the

Gerald Smith Committee of a Million, which have been showing a new strength under the peace banners of the midwest.

There is a definite effort on the part of all those organizations to keep out the Communists and the Nazis and the Fascists who are all too anxious to see the peace movement succeed in America, though for different reasons. Senator Nye, speaking in Detroit, was somewhat set back to find his meeting under the sponsorship of the Gerald Smith crowd.

The belief of all the legitimate peace groups that their cause has a chance is based on a number of contentions:

Most important is the recent national poll showing that only 17 per cent of the people wanted to go to war.

Next is a realization that the country is not now prepared for war, and cannot be prepared for another year.

Third is the fear that the war
may end before American aid to Britain can do any effective good.
This is important as every British defeat swings more of the "undecided" elements of the population into the peace ranks.

Fourth is the success of the Wheeler and Nye speeches in arousing people to the dangers of war.

Fifth is the unwillingness of labor to recognize the dangers to their rights in the present emergency and make the sacrifices which they might make if the

Greek Stamp Shows Century of Expansion

PHILATELISTS have a map of the war in Greece in the 1930 stamp above, showing the expansion of the nation from 1830 to 1930. During the century, Greece doubled its area and population.

After the successful war of independence against Turkey, the frontier of Greece was drawn from the Gulf of Arta to the Gulf of Volos, as shown on the stamp.
First addition to Greece was Britain's ceding of the Ionian Islands, on the west coast, in 1864.

In 1881, when a new Greco-Turkish war threatened, the frontier was extended, added 500 square miles of territory, and a population of 300,000. Crete was annexed after two years of trouble in 1898, although Cretan deputies were not admitted until 1912.

Turkey surrendered the greater part of European territory at the end of the first Balkan war.
Greece and Serbia united against Bulgaria in a quarrel over the spoils. Greece gained more territory in Macedonia and Thrace, was awarded the Aegean Islands, with the exception of the Dodecanese, held by Italy. The treaties of the World War pushed Greek frontiers to present-day limits.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—In spite of what you may conclude from reading, the war isn't all there is to Washington. A few years ago, research scientists discovered a Chinese drug called ephedrin and opened a new door to medical treatment.

A few weeks ago, a Department of Agriculture botanist, identified and classified (that's practically discovery) a new Chinese drug plant. It may not be worth a pill-roll to modern medicine, but the fact that it has been used for centuries as a cure for colds, sore throat, and minor stomach and intestinal ailments by the Chinese, is an indication that it might equal or top ephedrin. And the fact that there is an exciting story behind its discovery over in the "ag department" makes it plenty worth repeating, no matter what it amounts to.

In agriculture, there are scores of scientists who spend days and nights with unknown insects and plants and eventually give them names and classes, trace out their life histories and their usefulness or danger to mankind. There are hundreds of discoveries each year.

Traced To Its Source

ONE of the scientists is Dr. Walter T. Swingle, botanist, who, to put it simply, sure knows a heap about Chinese flora. Thus, it was to Dr. Swingle that all the reports and specimens of lo-han were referred and after months of study he came up with the answer. Back of that, however, was the strange story of a National Geographic Society expedition which four years ago set out to find what had for decades been a mystery—the source of this queer, fruit-like drug which was so highly rated by the Chinese that it was as common in some communities as aspirin in the United States.
In recent years, thousands of dollars worth of it has been imported to Chinese residents in this country, yet no one knew what it was or where it came from.

Starting in Canton, which seemed to be one of the principal distribution centers for the drug,
the expedition found it wrapped in papers that showed fruit grow-

HITLER'S NEXT MOVE

Analyzing the European developments after the fall of Athens and Churchill's memorable speech of Sunday, heard by many radio listeners in Warren, DeWitt MacKenzie, Associated Press foreign writer, sums up the situation in the following manner:

British Prime Minister Churchill, in giving an accounting of his stewardship to his beleaguered people, declared that the war may spread, but that Hitler can win it only by conquering England herself, either by invasion or by cutting her ocean lifeline to the United States.

That victory does depend on subjugation of the British Isles—mainspring of Allied resistance—has come to be regarded almost as a truism by military experts, even in Berlin. It is significant, therefore, to see the Nazis apparently getting set for major operations in connection with the subsidiary battle of the Mediterranean. They no longer talk of a "blitzkrieg" in connection with England.

It is doubly interesting in view of the fact that even now Hitler's forces are swarming among the monuments of ancient Greek civilization, putting the finishing touches to the job of evicting the Allies from their last toe-hold on the European continent. That is, the last save for the burning hearts of the many conquered peoples who are waiting for a chance to revolt against their German masters.

The fuhrer is ruler of that vast territory right up to the Russian border. And many observers express the belief that he is debating whether to strike at the Muscovites in an effort to extend his domination to them and gather to himself the riches of the Soviet Ukraine.

Why don't the Nazis devote their entire energy to the crushing of England, if the outcome of the war depends on this? Why waste golden hours on operations which admittedly are subsidiary to the main business in hand? The answer to this is twofold:

1. Despite the invincibility displayed by the German fighting machine on land, Hitler thus far hasn't developed the strength to crush Britain by blitzkrieg. Indeed, she has grown immeasurably stronger during the year in which he has been trying to knock her out.

2. The fuhrer needs to tap new sources of supply, for Europe is becoming a land of disorganization and want. Therefore the battle of the Mediterranean isn't by any means directed solely to the support of the assault on the British Isles. That is one purpose, of course, but the other is to get the oil of Iraq, the foodstuffs of the Near East, and the cotton of Egypt.

All this doesn't mean that there will be any slackening of the Nazi attack on Britain. However, despite the terrific inroads which Hitler is making on shipping, it takes a bit of time to sink the vast Allied merchant fleet. And the English Channel, with its churning currents, presents a fierce barrier to invasion, especially since the Germans haven't the air control essential to this operation, which is considered one of the most difficult of military history.

Thus it is that the Nazis are making widespread preparations for extending the war in the Mediterranean theatre. The most active point at the moment is the Egyptian-Libyan border, where the Axis forces are increasing their pressure, and Saturday night crossed the frontier at several points. This thrust is a direct threat to Egypt and the Suez Canal—key positions in the British control of the Mediterranean.

With Turkish support of the Allies on the doubtful list, Britain's chief problem is to assemble quickly an army powerful enough to defend the canal and Egypt either from an Axis thrust from Libya or through Turkey, Syria and Palestine. It is quite possible that Hitler may undertake offensives against the canal from both the east and the west simultaneously, with the idea of getting the British in a vise.

If the Germans can secure passage through Turkey, either by consent or by force, the British will be on a tough spot, for the Nazi chief can throw a vast and powerfully equipped army against them.

Churchill asserted that "Hitler cannot find safety from avenging justice in the east, middle east or far east." It is true, as already pointed out, that the war cannot be won in the Mediterranean, but it is equally true that the loss of Egypt and the Suez Canal would weaken Britain terribly.

PEACE ADVOCATES TAKE HEART ON NEW GAINS, PREPARE FOR THREE BIG BATTLES IN CONGRESS

Washington, April 29—One month ago the advocates of peace for America had about given up. The peace bill had gone through Congress by wide margins. It looked as if the United States were headed for eventual war.

Today, these peace advocates have taken heart. They think now they have a 50-50 chance of keeping the country out of war. The next month or six weeks will give the answer.

It is a strange group that is clubbed together in this fellowship of peace. Officially, its spokesmen are Senators Wheeler and Nye, who have been barnstorming the country and drawing tremendous crowds. Unofficially, it has the America First Committee as its most active element. In Washington it has the peace lobby groups, the old National Council for Prevention of War and the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom and kindred organizations, a half dozen of which have formed a Keep America Out of War Congress for a four-day mass meeting in Washington on Decoration Day weekend. There are individualists like Colonel Lindbergh and Sinclair Lewis, General Johnson and John T. Flynn who are star performers. There is a lunatic fringe, including the Coughlins and the Gerald Smith Committee of a Million, which have been showing a new strength under the peace banners of the midwest.

There is a definite effort on the part of all these organizations to keep out the Communists and the Nazis and the Fascists who are all too anxious to see the peace movement succeed in America, though for different reasons. Senator Nye, speaking in Detroit, was somewhat set back to find his meeting under the sponsorship of the Gerald Smith crowd.

The belief of all the legitimate peace groups that their cause has a chance is based on a number of contentions:

Most important is the recent national poll showing that only 17 per cent of the people wanted to go to war.

Next is a realization that the country is not now prepared for war, and cannot be prepared for another year.

Third is the fear that the war may end before American aid to Britain can do any effective good. This is important, as every British defeat swings more of the "undecided" element of the population into the peace ranks.

Fourth is the success of the Wheeler and Nye speeches in arousing people to the dangers of war.

Fifth is the unwillingness of labor to recognize the dangers to their rights in the present emergency and make the sacrifices which they might make if the Business locations are even scarcer than living apartments in Warren at present. Reed Brothers, who have conducted tonsorial parlors in the Citizens National Bank building for 23 years, must vacate and they are unable to secure another location. There is nothing available for them in the business section.

The W. H. S. Girls, Y. W. C. A. Club will present the play "The Homely Ladies' Journal" this evening. The personnel of the company is: Doris Thurston, general manager; Virginia Larson and Marceline Stebbins, assistants; Edith Knapp, property manager; Elizabeth Lesser, business manager.

In connection with the war pictures to be shown at the Strand theatre tonight, all ex-service men will parade the streets of the borough accompanied by the Warren Victory Band.

Hon. Williston P. Wood was in Warren this morning on his way to his home in Grand Valley, the House of Representatives session having ended in Harrisburg last night.

Sam Mack has let the contract for another well on his property on Jackson street extension.

At the meeting of the borough council Monday the most important question to be discussed will be the reorganization of the police department.

An adjourned meeting of the Warren borough board of school directors was held last evening, at which time preliminary sketches of the proposed new school to replace the McClintock building which was destroyed by fire, were presented by the architects.

The Community Concert Association plan will soon be applied in Warren. Local conditions seem ripe for the application of the plan at this time, and if Warren contains a minimum of even 500 music lovers, the success of the project is assured.

Spring work on farms in this section will be retarded from a week to ten days as a result of the winterlike weather of the past several days although the cold spell and snow are not expected to seriously affect growing vegetation.

Bids have been asked for a proposed new building at the Rees Hospital. According to the county commissioners the building will be a new women's dormitory and hospital.

State Senator L. E. Chapman returned this morning from Harrisburg where he attended the weekly sessions of the legislature.

Turkey surrendered the greater part of European territory at the end of the first Balkan war; Greece and Serbia united against Bulgaria in a quarrel over the spoils. Greece gained more territory in Macedonia and Thrace, was awarded the Aegean islands, with the exception of the Dodecanese, held by Italy. The treaties of the World War pushed Greek frontiers to present-day limits.

A Washington Daybook

By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—In spite of what you may conclude from reading, the war isn't all there is to Washington. A few years ago, research scientists discovered a Chinese drug called ephedrin and opened a new door to medical treatment.

A few weeks ago, a Department of Agriculture botanist, identified and classified (that's practically discovery) a new Chinese drug plant. It may not be worth a pill-roll to modern medicine, but the fact that it has been used for centuries as a cure for colds, sore throat, and minor stomach and intestinal ailments by the Chinese, is an indication that it might equal or top ephedrin. And the fact that there is an exciting story behind its discovery over in the "ag department" makes it plenty worth repeating, no matter what it amounts to.

In Agriculture, there are scores of scientists who spend days and nights with unknown insects and plants and eventually give them names and classes, trace out their life histories and their usefulness or danger to mankind. There are hundreds of discoveries each year.

Traced To Its Source

ONE of the scientists is Dr. Walter T. Swingle, botanist, who, to put it simply, sure knows a heap about Chinese flora. Thus, it was to Dr. Swingle that all the reports and specimens of lo-han were referred and after months of fruit-like drug which was so highly rated by the Chinese that it was as common in some communities as aspirin in the United States. In recent years, thousands of dollars worth of it has been imported to Chinese residents in this country, yet no one knew what it was or where it came from.

Starting in Canton, which seemed to be one of the principal distribution centers for the drug, the expedition found it wrapped in papers that showed fruit grow-

Size Of Hen Egg

THE fruit, from which the drug is taken, was found to be about the size of a big hen egg. Dried, it has a brittle shell. Inside are a too-sweet, fibrous meat and watermelon seeds.

Samples, photographs and reports finally came to Dr. Swingle and out of his laboratory the other day went the announcement that lo-han is a formerly unknown species of momordica.

You and I don't know what momordica is—but the botanists do and it may be only a season or two until it becomes as well known to medicine as ephedrin, calomel or aspirin. It certainly will if there's anything to the claims its Chinese testimonialists have been making these last 200 years.

If there's anything to it, we'll probably use it in vitamin capsules. The Chinese brew it into a sickeningly sweet soup.

That's how new medicines are born.

Salvationists Provide Relief

One of the important activities of the Salvation Army is its family welfare work, demonstrated in the picture above which shows workers sewing clothing to be used for needy families. The Salvation Army, one of the seven agencies included in the Community Chest, which starts solicitation in several divisions this week, provides clothing, furniture, food, medicine and other helpful care where it is most needed.

From its very beginning, the Salvation Army dispensed relief to the poor and needy and although no adequate plan existed in the earlier years, spiritual contact made the Army's charity effective and different from other agencies. Today the program includes case, family and group work, transient and seasonal relief, employment bureaus, court and probation responsibility and a close cooperation with all existing agencies.

In its work with the homeless man, the Salvation Army Social Welfare Service has as its fundamental aim the regeneration of the whole man—spiritual as well as physical. He comes often to the Army in the last stages of destitution, the major causes being unemployment, domestic troubles, drink and wanderlust. Weakened by lack of food, often veritably in rags, he is given a bath, food and clothing—then set to work while the power of kindly counsel is brought continually upon him. Finally, when in the opinion of responsible officers he is ready to start out anew, an effort is made to place him in a suitable position.

During the past year numerous emergencies have been attended by Salvationists, including night fires in frigid weather to render first aid to firemen or necessary shelter and assistance to families driven from their homes by flames. Added to this usual service has been the emergency organization set up by the state organization in order to quickly cope with all emergencies.

Many other activities, too numerous to be mentioned here, are carried on by the Salvation Army, largely through the funds provided in the Community Chest budget.

GOOD PROGRESS IS REPORTED IN LUTHERAN DRIVE

Rev. Edward K. Rogers, pastor of the First Lutheran church, announces today that workers reporting results in the congregational pre-centennial fund campaign have returned slightly more than 50 per cent of the prospect cards for the first week's efforts.

Pledges made for the approximate 54 per cent of cards that have been returned to F. X. Miller have reached the total of $3,434, or a little over half of the stated goal of $6,750.

This last sum was established by the church council in an effort to free the church entirely of indebtedness and cover the expense of redecoration in preparation for the parish's 100th anniversary in 1942. Pledges are arranged to cover a six-months period in an effort to make the plan of financing more convenient for donors.

Workers are urged by the centennial committee to make every effort to complete all contacts before next Sunday and members of the congregation are asked to give their full support to the project by cooperating with solicitors.

Picnic Grounds And Camps Constructed By Forest Service

The annual report of the U. S. Forest Service contains many interesting items. Forest Supervisor R. F. Hemingway of Allegheny National Forest points out one item of special significance.

During 1940, states the report, the Civilian Conservation Corps, under the direction of the U. S. Forest Service, constructed 4,600 camps and picnic grounds.

If one of these pleasant recreation areas was not built near your community, he said, it may have been because the CCC enrollees were busy preparing for or actually fighting forest fires. The 4,600,000 man days spent fighting forest fires that were largely attributed to public carelessness and indifference would have built many fine recreation areas elsewhere in the Nation, he stated.

LARGEST TUNNEL

The Mersey tunnel is the largest underwater tunnel in the world. Four lines of traffic run through it, and the distance of three miles from the street level at Liverpool to Birkenhead is negotiated under normal conditions, in eight minutes.

The most tragic theatre fire in history occurred at St. Petersburg, Russia, (now Leningrad) in 1836, when 700 persons perished.

Milk Mixture for Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs little and sold under absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by Miller Cut Rate and drug stores everywhere.

Advancements Given Scouts of Several Troops in Council

The advancement program of the local Boy Scout council continued to move along if last week's Boards of Review are any indication according to word received from Scout headquarters. The following advancements were earned last week: Second class, Edward Barney, James Dalrymple, Byron Lindell, Russell Thelin and William Webb all of Troop 18, Lander. Those advanced to First Class were Roderick Bergstrom and Gerald Stanton, Jr., Troop 18, Lander.

Merit badges were earned by Roderick Bergstrom in civics and George Tipton, Troop 27, Tidoute, in safety; James King, of Troop 27, Tidoute, in business and safety.

Advanced ranks were awarded to Gordon Hanks, Troop 2, Warren, Life Scout, and Lloyd Dickerson, Troop 10, Warren, to Star Scout.

Scout Campaigns in Sheffield and Pine Grove Are Started

Scout campaigns in Sheffield and Pine Grove township got under way at dinner meetings held at Bob's Restaurant in Sheffield and Lundgren's in Akeley. About thirty men attended the two meetings.

The Sheffield Scout campaign is under the leadership of F. L. Borden, chairman; D. J. Howard and G. A. Belknap, captains. Team workers are P. J. Finnerty, L. O. Eisenhauer, Oscar Dalton, Emmett Henry, Dr. R. L. Taylor, Claire Young, Clifford Ryberg, Dr. J. A. Allen, Art Boardman, O. L. Gustafson, Chris Yutze, C. A. Fitzgerald, L. B. Jones, C. E. Brong, Freeman Henry, Rev. Ivan Russell, Lagrant Peterson, Ted Kirch and W. M. Gallagher.

The Pine Grove campaign is under the leadership of E. F. Branstrom, captain, with the following men helping: E. H. Wheelock, A. E. Lundquist, Rev. R. S. Naylor, Gerry Briggs, T. M. Engle, Algot Lundgren, Walter Mellor and E. B. Eaton.

LAUNDRY SLIP COVERS FOR SPRING FRESHNESS

Like other household furnishings, slip covers become soiled and need occasional cleaning. For most Warren county homemakers that means laundering if the covers are made of preshrunk and tubfast materials.

Washing rules must be observed carefully if we expect the slip cover to retain its original color and shape, reminds Mrs. Prendergast, home economics extension representative of Warren county. Mild soap, soft water, and enough time to do a good job are the chief requisites for successful laundering.

She says to make a lukewarm suds, using mild soap, and carefully squeeze the cover up and down in the suds, or wash it in a machine that will not tear or pull the cover out of shape. Rinse the cover well, never twist or wring, but squeeze out the water and wrap the cover in newspapers, towels, or cold sheets to remove excess moisture. Smooth out the wrinkles as much as possible, roll and squeeze out the water. You may need to repeat the process before hanging the cover on the line.

doors, choose a day when it will dry quickly. Turn the other wrong side out and hang in the shade. Fasten the seams to the line with clothespins. Be sure that no excess moisture runs down into the hollows of the cover as it hangs on the line, for this may cause streaking or a change in color.

If the cover is pleated, you will need to be more careful in pressing if the cover is to look as well-tailored as it did when it was new.

Some slip covers can be put on chairs when slightly damp. This will save pressing, and if material has a tendency to shrink it may be stretched to fit.

BOTH SIDES FIRM IN WEST PENN STRIKE

Pittsburgh, April 29—(AP)—Both sides remained firm today as the strike of service workers at the West Penn hospital entered its 12th day. The management, who closed patients have been reduced from 476 to about 300. Only emergency cases are being taken.

The CIO State, County and Municipal Workers Union, which called the walkout demanding pay increases which the hospital said would amount to $50,000 a year, issued a call for funds to help the strike. Picketing continued in the zone adjacent to the institution, to which such demonstrations were restricted by Judge Frank P. Patterson in an injunction several days ago.

Nicaragua's national guard is trained by United States soldiers,

Your Nation's Capital

country were actually at war.

Sixth is a belief that the administration's new tax program will score many people away from war's unquestionable cost.

Seventh is a matter of interpretation. The administration has frequently called attention to the apathy of the American people in this crisis. The peace advocates say "apathy" is the wrong word—there is in reality coldness and a total disinterest in war.

Eighth is the fact that congressmen's mail is again running heavy against war.

All these points are listed here not to advocate them, but merely to try to summarize the argument from the peace side. If the peace advocates' contention that the country is drifting away from war is true, then the anti-war crowd has actually talked the country away from war sentiment while the administration has merely heaped the public's lack of appreciation of the crisis.

To overcome that lead, the administration will have to send its best campaign orators into the field to sell the country on its policy. These orators will have to do a better job than Hull and Knox did in their last speeches and Wendell Wilkie's proposed speaking tour for the former William Allen White committee will have to be good to be effective.

If the cause of non-participation in the war was not lost with the passage of the lease-lend bill, then there are three last ditches on which the issue can be fought in Congress again:

First is Senator Tobey's resolution to ban convoys.

Second is the concurrent resolution backed by Senators Nye, Wheeler, Capper, La Follette, Clark of Idaho, and Shipstead, calling for a national referendum on the question: "Shall the Congress under existing conditions approve the use of land, naval, and air forces outside the western hemisphere for the territorial possessions of the United States appropriate funds necessary for such military and naval operations?"

Third is the Capper resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment which shall provide for declaration of war by national referendum only.

Congress can provide a much better battle ground of those three questions within the next months than it could have a month ago.

SNOW FORMS CROSS

The Mount of the Holy Cross, in Colorado, is 14,000 feet high and is a triangular peak. The great cross itself measures 2000 feet from top to bottom and is formed by deep ravines, which are filled with snow almost the year around.

BOTH SIDES FIRM IN WEST PENN STRIKE

Pittsburgh, April 29.—(P)—Both sides remained firm today as the strike of service workers at the West Penn hospital entered its 12th day. The management, who closed patients have been reduced from 476 to about 300. Only emergency cases are being taken.

The CIO State, County and Municipal Workers Union, which called the walkout demanding pay increases which the hospital said would amount to $50,000 a year, issued a call for funds to help the strike. Picketing continued in the zone adjacent to the institution, to which such demonstrations were restricted by Judge Frank P. Peterson in an injunction several days ago.

country were actually at war. Sixth is a belief that the administration's new tax program will scare many people away from war's unquestionable cost.

Seventh is a matter of interpretation. The administration has frequently called attention to the apathy of the American people in this crisis. The peace advocates say "apathy" is the wrong word—that it is in reality coldness and a total disinterest in war.

Eighth is the fact that congressmen's mail is again running heavy against war.

All these points are listed here not to advocate them, but merely to try to summarize the argument from the peace side. If the peace advocates' contention that the country is drifting away from war is true, then the anti-war crowd has actually talked the country away from war sentiment while the administration has merely bemoaned the public's lack of appreciation of the crisis.

To overcome that lead, the administration will have to send its best campaign orators into the field to sell the country on its policy. These orators will have to do a better job than Hull and Knox did in their last speeches and Wendell Willkie's proposed speaking tour for the former William Allen White committee will have to be good to be effective.

If the cause of non-participation in the war was not lost with the passage of the lease-lend bill, then there are three last ditches on which the issue can be fought in Congress again:

First is Senator Tobey's resolution to ban convoys.

Second is the concurrent resolution backed by Senators Nye, Wheeler, Capper, La Follette, Clark of Idaho and Shipstead,

calling for a national referendum on the question: "Shall the Congress under existing conditions approve the use of land, naval, and air forces outside the western hemisphere or the territorial possessions of the United States appropriate funds necessary for such military and naval operations?"

Third is the Capper resolution, proposing a constitutional amendment which shall provide for declaration of war by national referendum only.

Congress can provide a much better battle on any of those three questions within the next months than it could have a month ago.

Larger than the states of Connecticut, Delaware, Massachusetts, and Rhode Island, combined, is Coconino county, Arizona.

Many at Farewell For the Lundgrens At Church in Ludlow

Ludlow, April 28—The Moriah Lutheran church was filled to capacity when the congregation and friends came to honor Rev. and Mrs. Carl E. Lundgren with a farewell party.

This marks the 30th year Rev. Lundgren has served in this church and Bethany church at Sheffield, coming here in August, 1928. All his duties have been carried on in a sincere manner and he leaves behind many fruits of his labors which will never be forgotten.

The program opened with congregational singing of "Beautiful Saviour," Scripture and prayer by Rev. H. M. Fahnestrom, of Wilcox. A welcome was given by the chairman, Enoch O. Nelson, and the program continued as follows:

Song by choir, "What a Friend We Have in Jesus"; address, Dr. F. V. Hanson, of Jamestown, N. Y., president of the New York Conference; vocal duet, Carl and Paul Swanson, "God Will Take Care of You"; testimonial addresses, Rev. J. V. Benson and Rev. W. W. Nyline, Kane; Rev. Fahnestrom, J. W. Fox, John G. Johnson and C. W. Swanson, of Ludlow; song by the choir, "Jesus du som mig har kär."

As a parting gift, a bouquet of roses was given Mrs. Lundgren and a purse of money was presented to Rev. Lundgren by Gustav Olson. In response, the couple expressed warm appreciation to all who have helped make their stay such a pleasant one.

After a closing hymn, "Blest Be the Tie That Binds," Rev. Anthony Groves pronounced the benediction and refreshments were served. Sunday morning, Rev. Lundgren conducted services in English and Swedish, marking the closing of his pastorate. They leave today for Houtzdale, where he has accepted a call to the Bethel Lutheran church.

Rev. Fahnestrom will serve the local and Sheffield parishes until a new minister is chosen. Carl Gronquist, theological student from Augustana Seminary in Rock Island, Ill., has been named as candidate by councils of the two churches.

Whit Bests Paul In Slab Duel As Reds Bow To Hot Dodgers

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer
The Cincinnati Reds last year were world champions, and they may be again, but it must be said at this early date that other teams have improved while the Reds have remained stationary.

The champs came east yesterday and bumped into the Brooklyn Dodgers. Their clash was a battle of titans, but the Dodgers emerged with their seventh successive victory, 3-2, and took over first place in the senior circuit, while the Reds were left languishing in fourth place.

The Reds had good pitching—a six-hit job by their veteran ace, Paul Derringer. They had their customary flawless fielding—including one of the most spectacular catches of the young season when Ival (Poison Ivy) Goodman stood almost against the rightfield fence, 300 feet from the plate, and jumped high to spear a liner in the sixth inning. They had as good an offense as the Dodgers—six hits, including a home run by Buck McCormick.

But the Dodgers had that "zing" that challenges sometimes get and champions eventually lose. Whitlow Wyatt struck out ten of the champs and held them to six hits, too. When McCormick's homer put the Reds in front, the Dodgers had what it took to get back in front—a single by Jim Waddell and a home run by Alex Kamps. When the Reds tied the score through Eddie Lombardi's triple in the seventh, the Dodgers had what was needed to win in the ninth—a single with two on by old Whit Wyatt himself.

The Reds haven't skidded, but to finish 12 games in front of the Dodgers last year they had to win 41 games by one run and Brooklyn had to fall into a lot of trouble like Joe Medwick's beaning, Harry Lavagetto's appendicitis operation, Wyatt's sore arm and Peeewe Reese's broken heel bone.

You can bet that the fighting is going to be a lot fiercer this year. The St. Louis Cardinals are in the middle of it, also. They were idle yesterday, along with the rest of the league but today were to open their eastern swing against the third-place New York Giants.

The American League action has switched to the west. While the eastern teams were traveling yesterday, the Cleveland Indians reinforced their grip on first place by drubbing the Detroit Tigers, 7-2. The Chicago White Sox moved into a (third-place tie with a 2-1 edge over the St. Louis Browns.

DRAGONS NOTCH THIRD STRAIGHT IN TORRID TILT

The Dragon terrors chalked up their third straight last night, but it took a four-bit pitching job by Bob Sedon to turn back Russell High, 2-1, at Russell Field.

Coach Leidig's lads also got but four bingles. Kane started on the hill for the visitors and gave up all of the hits in his four and one-third frames. Jim Akeley took over the mound duties and muffled the Warren bats for the rest of the fray.

The Dragons scored an unearned run in the third inning to open the scoring. Smith got a life on an infield error, stole second and third and scored when Akeley dropped the third strike.

Warren notched the winning run in the fourth with a cluster of three hits. Huffman led off with a single, stole second while Kifer was whiffing, and Jim Harding sent him down with an infield hit. "Vic" was picked off third when he over-ran the bag, but Jungle Jim stole second and scored on Olson's long double to left.

Russell tallied arrived in the fifth. Martin singled, went down to second when Sedon hit Lundgren and scored all the way on a wild pitch. Russell threatened in the seventh when they got two hits but Sedon retired the side.

Tonight the Dragons meet Thonesta here and Falconer comes to Russell Field Thursday. An effort is being made to get the Ridgway Elks for tomorrow evening.

INJURY TO BLUE PAIR MAY CUT FIELD OF DERBY

Yonkers, Ky., April 29—(A)—Topping off the list of circumstances that makes this the "different derby" a report went the rounds today that the Derby trial rule this afternoon may uncover an injury to keep the $40,000 Blue Pair out of Saturday's run for the roses.

Starting from apparently well-founded sources this rumor said the colt that Tom Bragg, the Colfax and New York investment broker, bought from C. C. Van Meter for $40,000 less than two weeks ago had turned up with a splint ailment and a sore back and that his performance in the annual mile "preview" would decide his chances of getting to the post Saturday.

Trainer Willie Clump refused to discuss the whole thing but it was noted that the atmosphere around Blue Pair's stable was not of the holiday variety that usually stamps an optimistic Derby barn.

At any rate this possibility and the showing if any of a colt named sporting, purchased recently by Dan Withers of Chicago, are the only factors which have today's trial stake from being just a $2,500 workout.

So far, Warren Wright's Whirlaway and the four others in the field of seven are concerned the whole thing might just as well be a hair dance. Because Whirlaway, to be ridden by Eddie Arcaro Saturday, will go to the post Saturday, win or lose or scratch to lose and the other quartet—Cadumn Shavin G. Quintilian and Buman—won't get in the Derby even though the back door, according to their handlers.

Sports Round-up

BY EDDIE BRIETZ
New York, April 29. More than half of the guys on Shorty Luster's Oklahoma U. grid squad are looking for their draft numbers to go up. Did you know that the only time Whirlaway whipped our Boots in four tries last year was the only race in which "The Boots" went hidden by either Carroll Birman or Eddie Arcaro?

New York boxing commission is listing fighters who are consistent losers and will revoke their licenses. Yep, a heap of small fry managers are mighty indignant and are getting ready to go on record. First serious football casualty is Steve Juzewick, Notre Dame's high scorer last year, who broke an arm in scrimmage the other day.

Jersey City's Saturday battery reads: East Lynn and Blaimiere. Next week, Uncle Tom's Cabin.

Gauding About
Harry Stuhldreier already has picked Minnesota to win the big ten football title again next year. With Northwestern and Ohio State second and third, Columbia is looking for someone to fill the role of Forest Evashevsky in the forthcoming movie, "Tom Harmon of Michigan." Well, Ed Trevor of the Broadway hit "Lady in the Dark" is a dead ringer for Evashevsky—in the face anyway....

Each of the 15 rooms in Joe Louis' ranch house boast a nuke box. But that's nothing. When King Levinsky trained at "Peg's Haunted House" in Chicago for his 1935 bout with Louis, the joint sported 50 slot machines.

What's The Big Idea?
The other day you read that Bobby Ruggs, our No. 2 ranking tennis player, had been appointed assistant publicity director at Presbyterian college down in South Carolina.... Well, Art Cohn, our No. 1 gum shoe man on the coast, reports that three years ago the U. S. L. T. A. wanted to send Frankie Kovacs to Presbyterian.

People And Things
Elmer Layden will open his new pro football office in the same Chicago building that houses baseball's American League. Aurel Toma, Rumanian-born bantamweight, has run afoul of the immigration authorities at Tia Juana.... DRAGONS NOTCH THIRD STRAIGHT IN TORRID TILT

The Dragon tilters chalked up their third straight last night, but it took a four-hit pitching job by Bob Sedon to turn back Russell High, 2-1, at Russell Field.

Coach Leidig's lads also got but four bingles. Kane started on the hill for the visitors and gave up all of the hits in his four and one-third frames. Jim Akeley took over the mound duties and muffled the Warren bats for the rest of the fray.

The Dragons scored an unearned run in the third inning to open the scoring. Smith got a life on an infield error, stole second and third and scored when Akeley dropped the third strike.

Warren notched the winning run in the fourth with a cluster of three hits. Huffman led off with a single, stole second while Kifer was whiffing, and Jim Harding came down with an infield hit. Vic was picked off third when he over-ran the bag, but Jungle Jim stole second and scored on Olson's long double to left.

The Russell tally arrived in the fifth. Martin singled, went down to second when Sedon hit Lundgren and scored all the way on a wild pitch. Russell threatened in the seventh when they got two hits but Sedon retired the side.

Whit Bests Paul In Slab Duel As Reds Bow To Hot Dodgers

BY JUDSON BAILEY
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Cincinnati Reds last year were world champions, and they may be again, but it must be said at this early date that other teams have improved while the Reds have remained stationary.

The champs came east yesterday and bumped into the Brooklyn Dodgers. Their clash was a battle of titans, but the Dodgers emerged with their seventh successive victory, 3-2, and took over first place in the senior circuit, while the Reds were left languishing in fourth place.

The Reds had good pitching—a six-hit job by their veteran ace, Paul Derringer. They had their customary flawless fielding—including one of the most spectacular catches of the young season when Ival (Poison Ivy) Goodman stood almost against the rightfield fence, 300 feet from the plate, and jumped high to spear a liner in the sixth inning. They had as good an offense as the Dodgers—six hits, including a home run by Buck McCormick.

But the Dodgers had that "zing" that challenges sometimes get and champions eventually lose.

Whit Wyatt struck out ten of the champs and held them to six hits. When McCormick's home run put the Reds in front, the Dodgers had what it took to get back in front—a single by Jim Waddell and a home run by Alex Kamporis. When the Reds tied the score through Ernie Lombardi's triple in the seventh, the Dodgers had what was needed to win in the ninth—a single with two on by old Whit Wyatt himself.

The Reds haven't skidded, but to finish 12 games in front of the Dodgers last year they had to win 41 games by one run and Brooklyn had to fall into a lot of trouble like Joe Medwick's beaning, Harry Lavagetto's appendicitis operation, Wyatt's sore arm and Pee-wee Reese's broken heel bone.

You can bet that the fighting is going to be a lot fiercer this year. The St. Louis Cardinals are in the middle of it, also. They were idle yesterday, along with the rest of the league but today were to open their eastern swing against the third-place New York Giants.

The American League action has switched to the west. While the eastern teams were traveling yesterday, the Cleveland Indians reinforced their grip on first place by drubbing the Detroit Tigers, 7-2. The Chicago White Sox moved into a (third-place tie with a 2-1 edge over the St. Louis Browns.

TANK CAR TEAM STILL IN RACE FOR ELK HONORS

Surviving the first two rounds in the Elks Exalted Rulers bowling league last night, the Warren Tank Car team won its way to the league finals and the right to meet the Tasty Bakery next Monday night at 7 o'clock.

The Tankers first took two out of three games from the National Transit and then came back to defeat the Style Shop bowlers, who had disposed of the New York Restaurant in their opener.

Fred Gebhardt and "Jap" Lynch turned in games of 245 and 236 as the Warren Tank outfit rolled a 975 third game to clinch the series. This was one of the season's highest games.

On Wednesday evening at seven o'clock the first round of the Elks Leading Knights League will be rolled, with the winners meeting at 9 o'clock.

Three Divisions Start Solicitation

(From Page One) Wroth said. However, others have not been measuring up to their possibilities and it is from those sources that the increase is expected. Mr. Wroth stated.

It was pointed out that the difference of $2,346 results from several factors. Among these are the death of several substantial contributors, the removal from Warren of previous donors and the fact that some who gave last year are now unemployed.

Increases in employment, particularly in the industrial division, are in favor of the chest campaign, it was stated, and wherever possible, increases in contributions are hoped for.

It was announced that the Warren Relief Association is in charge of the program at the Community Chest Agency Exposition this evening. The public is invited to visit the exposition between seven and nine o'clock.

Flying Colonel is Severely Rebuked by Sec'y Early

(From Page One) House. He then related that during a controversy over the cancellation of air mail contracts and the carrying of air mail by the army in 1934, Lindbergh had sent a telegram to the president on a Sunday afternoon. He said it was printed in Monday morning papers, but did not get to the president until 10 a. m. on Monday.

"Is that pulled on the White House often?" a reporter inquired. "Twice by Lindbergh," Early answered.

In 1934 Lindbergh assailed the president's action on cancelling private air mail contracts and putting the mail in army planes, on the grounds it would be harmful to American aviation.

Lindbergh's action in releasing his telegram brought a rebuke at the time from a presidential secretary.

Retreating Allies Are Hotly Pursued in Lower Peloponnesus

(From Page One) Crete, yesterday that Greeks would fight on from there. "Destiny," he said, "has chosen two islands as the last but worthy ramparts of the free peoples of Europe; the great island of Britain and this great island of the Hellenes."

Informed sources said Crete, in German hands, would spell the greatest danger to British Near-East strongholds—Alexandria and Port Said in Egypt, and to the Suez Canal. They said the flying time for Nazi long-range bombers operating against Egypt now from Sicily would be cut by more than half once Crete were available to the Luftwaffe.

NAME OFFICERS FOR RED CROSS CHAPTER HERE

Holding its first regular business meeting at the Y. W. C. A. activities building last evening, the executive committee of the newly reorganized Warren County Chapter of the American Red Cross elected C. J. Cray permanent chairman. Mr. Cray is a former president of the Warren Community Chest and active in many civic enterprises and projects.

Others elected were Dr. T. E. Colley, first vice chairman; George Cowden, second vice chairman; Miss Mildred Blair, secretary; Mrs. A. A. Grant, of Sugar Grove, assistant chairman; Holgar Elmquist, treasurer.

John G. Rossmann, superintendent of schools, served as temporary chairman and Mrs. B. V. Knapp, as secretary. It was decided that regular meetings would be held the second Monday of each month, the place to be decided upon later.

Routine business was transacted and mention was made of the annual membership enrollment, which starts on Armistice Day. The board approved and continued in their present capacities Mrs. R. W. Steber, chairman of sewing and knitting; Mrs. L. J. Jamieson, chairman of surgical dressings, and Jasper Shepard, chairman of first aid. It was suggested that a committee be named to supervise home service work, its duties to include maintaining of contacts between boys in army camps and their parents; also the handling of local emergencies.

Jams McCarthy, general field representative of the national headquarters in Washington, D. C., was present to explain further the work of the American Red Cross and to tell of a conference which he just attended in the nation's capital.

Big Guns Shell the Dover Area For Six Hours

(From Page One) Later it was reported that three men were slightly wounded. After the Germans had fired single shells for three hours they stepped up the barrage, using four-gun and six-gun salvos at intervals of about three minutes, then narrowed the time to one minute.

Flashes and columns of smoke spiraling upward across the sunlit channel showed the Germans' Calais batteries were delivering the attack. Calais is about 21 miles across the channel from Dover.

The shelling continued without let-up after it had been in progress for nearly four hours. The last previous heaviest daylight bombardment of Dover was last fall.

Finally there was an hour's lull, then the Germans began sending over a succession of single shells. Up until early afternoon no casualties were reported.

(From Page One) committee gave approval last week to a bill which would clear the way for final action. It proposes broad powers for the president in taking over and disposing of foreign shipping tied up in American ports.

Legal experts say that ample authority exists for taking over the sabotaged ships, but there is some question as to how far the United States could go in using other foreign vessels now in American ports.

Music Dispute Considered by Supreme Court

(From Page One) a consent decree following a controversy with broadcasting companies over renewal of license fees. Counsel for the organization told the Supreme Court that "there is only one way by which the owners of copyrighted musical compositions may obtain revenue for their public performance for profit of such compositions, and that way is by collective action."

Private Shot in an Argument at Camp Shelby

(From Page One) Smith then pulled out a bottle and gave them a drink. He then asked that they put their dog in the pen and let him fight. They refused.

"Smith, the men said, then demanded to know who was going to pay for the drink. Witnesses said Zielinski told Smith that 'we owe you 75 cents, but we have no money.' An argument ensued and Smith is said to have drawn a revolver and shot Zielinski."

O'Donnell said Smith told him he fired when Zielinski started toward him.

Score Threat To Bomb Rome

(From Page One) to ask whether Rome does not belong to the culture of the whole world far more than the little Italian-speaking group of Benito and Beppos who are at present its local custodians.

"That we should in the same breath indignantly deny that our last raid on Berlin was a reprisal and then announce a major reprisal at which must have staggered the historical conscience of the world shows our heads are not as clear as they might be on this subject."

The letter asserted there was no military gain in demolishing metropolitan cities and pointed out that the bombing of London and Berlin had succeeded only in "infuriating the unfortunate inhabitants."

Wroth said. However, others have not been measuring up to their possibilities and it is from those sources that the increase is expected. Mr. Wroth stated.

It was pointed out that the difference of $2,346 results from several factors. Among these are the death of several substantial contributors, the removal from Warren of previous donors and the fact that some who gave last year are now unemployed.

Increases in employment, particularly in the industrial division, are in favor of the chest campaign, it was stated, and wherever possible, increases in contributions are hoped for.

It was announced that the Warren Relief Association is in charge of the program at the Community Chest Agency Exposition this evening. The public is invited to view the exposition between seven and nine o'clock.

In an effort to force this "bottleneck" Senator John M. Walker, (R-Allegany) offered a resolution to compel final adjournment of the 1941 legislature by May 23. Senator Shapiro said the idea was "a joke" and the resolution was referred to the Senate rules committee.

Shifting attention momentarily from finances, the House Democrats called a late caucus today to decide whether their party bill for revision of milk control should contain a provision to abolish the three-man state commission and also do away with retail price fixing. A spokesman said there was "quite a difference of opinion" over these provisions.

Legal experts say that ample authority exists for taking over the sabotaged ships, but there is some question as to how far the United States could go in using other foreign vessels now in American ports.

Force.
On the African front Axis forces which have succeeded in advancing into Egypt five or six miles beyond the frontier post of Salum were held in check yesterday by the harassing action of British patrols, authorized sources said.

Australian troops garrisoned at the Libyan port of Tobruk, 80 miles west of the Egyptian border, were reported, meanwhile, to have made new sallies against German-Italian forces in that area.

The Axis troops were said to be taking up defensive positions around Tobruk to combat the British forays.

On the Ethiopian front, British troops were reported continuing the pursuit of Italian forces retreating into the hills from captured Dessie under heavy bombing.

Later it was reported that three men were slightly wounded. After the Germans had fired single shells for three hours they stepped up the barrage, using four-gun and six-gun salvos at intervals of about three minutes, then narrowed the time to one minute.

Flashes and columns of smoke spiraling upward across the sunlit channel showed the Germans' Calais batteries were delivering the attack. Calais is about 21 miles across the channel from Dover.

The shelling continued without let-up after it had been in progress for nearly four hours. The last previous heaviest daylight bombardment of Dover was last fall.

Finally there was an hour's lull, then the Germans began sending over a succession of single shells. Up until early afternoon no casualties were reported.

Smith then pulled out a bottle and gave them a drink. He then asked that they put their dog in the pen and let him fight. They refused.

"Smith, the men said, then demanded to know who was going to pay for the drink. Witnesses said Zielinski told Smith that 'we owe you 75 cents, but we have no money.' An argument ensued and Smith is said to have drawn a revolver and shot Zielinski.

O'Donnell said Smith told him he fired when Zielinski started toward him.

Ceremonies to Mark Sale of First National Defense Bonds and Stamps At Local Post Office on Thursday

Impressive ceremonies to be held at the Third avenue entrance of the Warren post office on Thursday morning at 7:55 o'clock will mark the opening of the local sale of national defense saving bonds and stamps, it was announced today by Postmaster James K. Bell.

All citizens of the community are urged to attend the exercises which are expected to last about twenty minutes, Postmaster Bell said today.

The program, which has been arranged by a group from the Citizens' Committee of Warren, headed by Ben Kinnear, will be in charge of N. K. Wendelboe, commander of the local American Legion post.

The program will open with the playing of the national anthem by the high school band, and the missing of the colors of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other service organizations. This will be followed by invocation by the Rev. E. Pinkney Wroth and a short address by Burgess R. W. Stober.

An appropriate ceremony marking the sale of the first defense saving bonds and stamps in Warren and among the first in the nation will then be held. The program will close with the singing of "America" by the group.

In a room from the exercises will be held in the local theatre, it was stated.

Through the cooperation of the local schools, supplies from the high school, Deity, Jefferson and East street buildings will attend the program.

It was pointed out today by Postmaster Bell that both the national defense saving bonds and the national defense saving stamps will be on sale at local banks, as well as at the post office.

Prominent Speaker Invited to Warren

The Men's Goodfellowship Class of the Calvary Baptist Sunday school met last evening at the home of B. E. Shellen, Prospect street.

Among other business matters, it was decided to invite R. G. LeTourneau, noted manufacturer of road building machinery in Peoria, Ill., to come to Warren at the first opportunity, under the sponsorship of the class. Mr. LeTourneau is often referred to as "America's outstanding Christian business man" and devotes the major portion of his income, as well as his time, to Christian work. His schedule is so full that it will probably be two years before he can come here. He owns his own plane and does most of his traveling by that medium.

After the business session, Rev. Axel Rendahl, former pastor of the local church, spoke on his work as representative of the Swedish National Student in Denver, Colo., gave many interesting facts about tuberculosis and the history of medicine's war against it.

ROTARIANS HEAR TALK ON PORT ALLEGANY POOL

At the luncheon meeting of the Warren Rotary Club, held yesterday noon at the Y. W. C. A., members enjoyed a very interesting talk by Fred N. Hardy, supervising principal of the Port Allegany schools and a member of the Rotary Club of that town on the subject of the Port Allegany community pool and swimming pool.

In his talk, Mr. Hardy stated that the project was conceived by the Port Allegany Rotary Club shortly after the organization was chartered in 1930. He said the need for such facilities had long been felt in the community and the Rotarians, with a membership of 21, undertook the sponsorship of the project.

He outlined the method of raising the required funds and told of the means which were used to keep the swimming pool in operation.

Hardy also showed moving pictures of the development during its period of construction and of the park and pool in use.

Yesterday's meeting was in charge of President William E. Yeager. One new member, Clifford L. Tyler, was introduced.

Guests at the meeting included Burgess R. W. Stober, Council President, Forest White, the Rev. J. A. Davidson, all of Warren, and L. R. Mason, of Erie.

INCENDIARIES RAIN ON PLYMOUTH AGAIN

On the night of April 29, the town of Plymouth, Pa., was again the scene of a firestorm, as a result of incendiary bombs being dropped by a German plane.

The plane, which was seen in the sky over the town, dropped a number of incendiary bombs, which fell in various parts of the town, causing considerable damage to property.

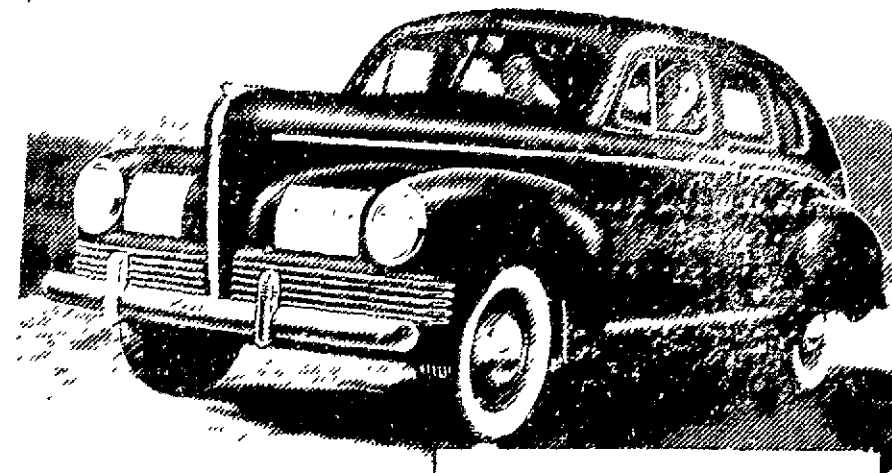

The fire department was called out to fight the fires, but the damage was considerable.

The town of Plymouth is a small town, with a population of about 1,000 people. It is located in the county of Warren, Pa.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDEMER

YESTERDAY: Eileen Gardner has at last made the great decision. She has had a success in getting a little Colorado vacation, outstaying with that cozy place during the important days of Jordan's courtship to marry her. And going east with Molly Flanagan means taking a big chance for a big job—and the possibility of finding Martin, whom she has met once before, and would like to meet again. So she'll go.

Chapter 13
New York

THE interview with Jordan, who she had tried to escape, was hard.

"You're hard. You're unfeeling. You care for nothing but climbing to the top," he accused her. "You're ordinary, rather shy calm broken to 'fatters' 'You love me—out you love career more. You'd rather trample down all your own human feelings and stand and sing into a little piece of tin and have applause than have a satisfying real—well, no, motherhood, normal human contacts."

She stared at him. She had somehow supposed that her real reason for going to New York was written across her forehead in gilt letters. And here was Jordan lecturing her for being a hard career girl? She wanted to laugh—and then she felt like crying, a little. So she did neither one.

She said more sharply than she meant, "You're like all the rest of the men in the world. You think because I want to do something else more than marry you, that it applies to all the other men there are."

He looked at her for a moment as if she were speaking in a strange language.

"You mean—you mean you want to find somebody who has more than I have—who can give you more than I can give you?" There was no way of explaining. Nevertheless she tried once more.

"No, Jordan. It's just that, while I don't love you enough to marry you, I might love some other man enough."

"You do love me," he said. "You love me, only you don't know it, you have some crazy idea in your head from the movies. We've gone round together and been good friends, we've been close, we've been congenial, and you've known I've loved you. I've seen your attitude to me. You couldn't have been my pal—my girl—all this time without really loving me. You think you're the kind that can have some impossible emotion, go off the deep end. You're not. You aren't that kind. Tell you, you're a career woman."

He had, she saw, an image of her in his mind that no amount of argument on her part would turn into a truer one. He wanted her like the cool to him because she could not be anything else to anyone else.

She tried once more.

"But if I think I am, Jordan, it is the same as if it were true. You'll have to let me find out for myself."

Unfortunately he snapped at her.

"That means there's a good chance still. All right, darling, I'll wait. His eyes were emotional behind the glasses. 'I'll wait forever. I know you'll come back to me. If you don't—well, I'll come to you.'"

They were back at Jerry's leaning to each other across one of the little round tables. He dropped her head. There was no use arguing.

Pageant Of Light

THE drive was fun. Molly had made it before. Eileen never had. They stopped at tourist camps, mostly, but once or twice they slept in the car, and one glorious night—when it was that or a rainstorm outdoors—spent good money on a hotel in Kansas.

And eventually they were in New York State, Buffalo—Utica—Albany—the Albany Post Road, the Cross County Parkway, the Bronx Parkway, sliding invisibly back the Savannah River and Henry Hudson Parkways.

Finally, a last toll bridge, and the rattling, staunch little car with its piled luggage and two excited girls was sliding down along the Hudson River one early September evening, between the tall apartment houses of Riverside Drive and the river and the ships with the pale sails, all electric signs and far-off romantic whistles.

"Oh, Molly, the lights! It's like a pageant!" Eileen gasped. Molly fortunately was driving. Eileen's eyes focused with excitement on the stately stings on the apartments with their hundreds of lighted windows, turned eagerly back to the river and the ships that winked off and on forever.

"Well, of course," Molly laughed and was a little motherly. "I've been warning that sign all night for quite a while. I used to have a boy friend that was out on a string on a Riverside bridge, and watching it."

"No," Molly said. "What sort of people come to see the lights?"

"Well, all sorts of people. In a majority, so I don't know very many—just a few men and blue eyes. I've been of the sort of playboy, a little from New Zealand, but just by the way, how's tricks? You find them farther east, old Eileen colored.

"I didn't," she began to say, and stopped, because she had "Cheer up, my sweet," Molly continued. "She ran down the ramp at Fifty-seventh Street. 'We're heading to his hideout—get now. Swank, that's me.' She whisked the car expertly between thundering trucks and whizzing sedans east on Fifty-seventh and took a long breath of relaxation. "Gosh, that's a corner—when you've been playing round desert trails, where the worst you can find is a couplea Welgands."

"But Molly, for heaven's sake, you're not taking an apartment east?"

"There's east and east," Molly said. "I don't know whether I told you our plans about the flower shop. We've got a chance for a place on Third Avenue, in the Fifties. Just about perfect, if you ask me. Near enough to Park and the smart cross-street apartments so that people who want flowers cheap can slide out and get them. You wouldn't think how many people that get their names in the society columns and the right-club list want to buy things cheap, from delicatessen to posies."

She drove expertly on.

By the next night she and Eileen were as settled into New York as though they had always belonged there.

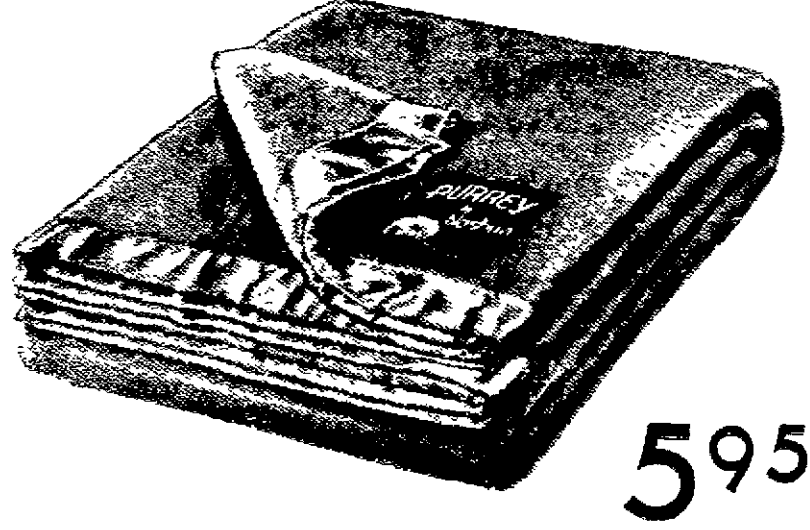

Molly knew her neighborhood. Without much trouble the girls found a fourth-story apartment in a brownstone house, on the edge of the better-class tenements, but also not too far from the place where the flower shop, that goal of Molly's ambitions, was to be.

Molly left Eileen to settle in. It felt a little cramped after the spacious, sunlit rooms in the white apartment house in Denver.

You climbed three flights of stairs. There was a narrow slip of a bedroom for one of them; a living room which the other would have to use as a bath between, old, too roomy, lighted by a skylight; there was a kitchenette which was far from being roomy enough. It was furnished rather gloomily and casually; a cot bed in one room, a davenport in the other, various sorts of chairs and draperies that Eileen decided to change whether it proved extravagant or not.

But, standing at the little window, she could see the East River. The boats went up and down, lighted and lovely. The stars showed in a scrap of sky beyond. Eileen had always lived inland, and this was wonderful.

ON THE RECORD

BY PAUL BRAUNSCHWEIGER
The Mullen-Drug Co.

Of immeasurable benefit to a medical man is the case history of his patient. Perhaps emergency strikes with fearful speed—it may be a cerebral hemorrhage, it may be infantile paralysis, perhaps an automobile accident renders the patient unconscious for a period.

Then the record becomes important. What is the history? How strong is the heart? What strain has been put upon this organism? Upon the answers to these questions much depends in the way of treatment that may be attempted.

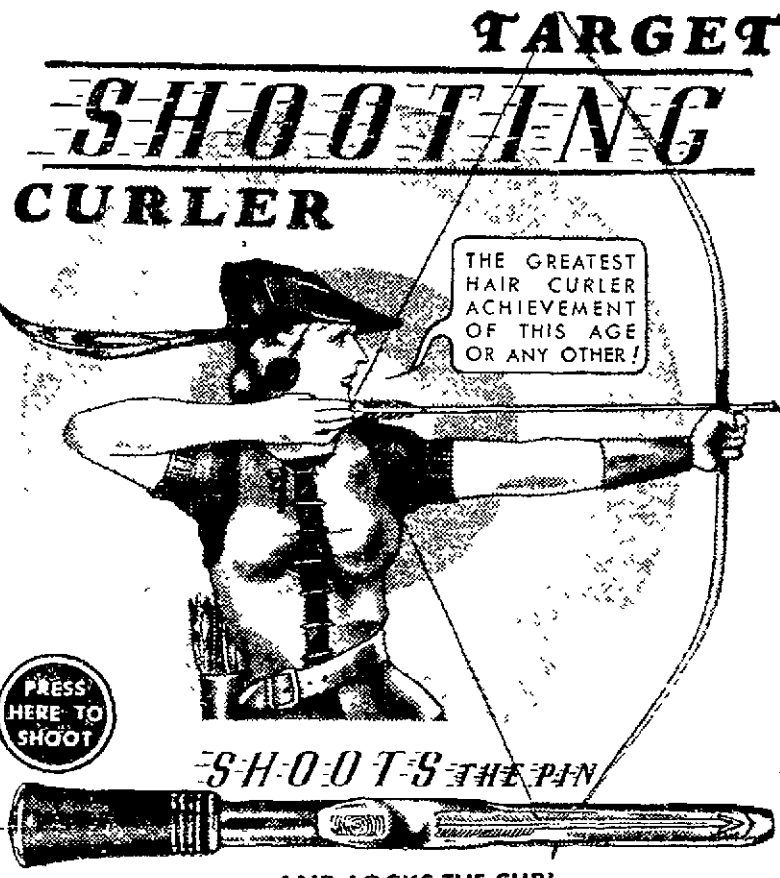

Put yourself on record with your doctor. Recall the various sieges of illnesses you may have had, get it down in black and white. It will do you no harm; it may result in lasting benefit for the doctor to know your life as you have lived it, to know how you are living now.

All medication should be prepared by a registered pharmacist.

Ceremonies to Mark Sale of First National Defense Bonds and Stamps At Local Post Office on Thursday

Impressive ceremonies to be held at the Third Avenue entrance of the Warren post office on Thursday morning at 7:55 o'clock will mark the opening of the local sale of national defense savings bonds and stamps. It was announced today by Postmaster James K. Bell.

All citizens of the committee are urged to attend the exercises, which are expected to last about twenty minutes. Postmaster Bell said today.

The program, which has been arranged by a group from the Citizens' Committee of Warren, headed by Ben Kinnear, will be in charge of N. K. Wendelboe, commander of the local American Legion post.

The program will open with the playing of the national anthem by the high school band and the raising of the colors of the American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars and other service organizations. This will be followed by invocation by the Rev. E. Pinkney Wroth, and a short address by Burgess R. W. Steber.

An appropriate ceremony marking the sale of the first defense savings bonds and stamps in Warren and among the first in the nation will then be held. The program will close with the singing of "America" by the group.

In case of rain, the exercises will be held in the Library theatre, it was stated.

Through the cooperation of the local schools, pupils from the high school, Beatty, Jefferson and East street buildings will attend the program.

It was pointed out today by Postmaster Bell that both the national defense savings bonds and the national defense savings stamps will be on sale at local banks, as well as at the post office.

Prominent Speaker Invited to Warren

The Men's Goodfellowship Class of the Calvary Baptist Sunday school met last evening at the home of B. E. Shellin, Prospect street.

Among other business matters, it was decided to invite R. G. Le Tournou, noted manufacturer of road building machinery in Peoria, Ill., to come to Warren at the first opportunity, under the sponsorship of the class. Mr. Le Tournou is often referred to as "America's outstanding Christian business man" and devotes the major portion of his income, as well as his time, to Christian work. His schedule is so full that it will probably be two years before he can come here. He owns his own plane and does most of his traveling by that medium.

After the business session, Rev. Axel Rendahl, former pastor of the local church, spoke on his work as representative of the Swedish National Sanatorium in Denver, Colo., gave many interesting facts about tuberculosis and the history of medicine's war against it.

ROTARIANS HEAR TALK ON PORT ALLEGANY POOL

At the luncheon meeting of the Warren Rotary Club, held yesterday noon at the Y. W. C. A., members enjoyed a very interesting talk by Fred N. Hardy, supervising principal of the Port Allegany schools and a member of the Rotary Club of that town, on the subject of the Port Allegany community park and swimming pool.

In his talk, Mr. Hardy stated that the project was conceived by the Port Allegany Rotary Club shortly after the organization was chartered in 1930. He said the need for such facilities had long been felt in the community and the Rotarians, with a membership of 21, undertook the sponsorship of the project.

He outlined the method of raising the required funds and told of the means which were used to keep the swimming pool in operation. Mr. Hardy also showed moving pictures of the development during its period of construction and of the park and pool in use.

Yesterday's meeting was in charge of President William E. Yeager. One new member, Clifford L. Tyler, was introduced.

Guests at the meeting included Burgess R. W. Steber, Council President; Forrest Walte, the Rev. J. A. Davidson, all of Warren, and L. R. Mason, of Erie.

INCENDIARIES RAIN ON PLYMOUTH AGAIN

Plymouth, England, April 29—(P)—Thousands of incendiaries and oil bombs were loosed on this seaport by Nazi planes during a sharp attack last night and early today.

Neither damage nor casualties were large. The attack, less intense than previous ones, came only a few hours after the victims of the three raids last week were buried in a communal grave. One invading plane was reported shot down.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDERER

YESTERDAY: Eileen Gardner has at last made the great decision. She has had a success singing on a little Colorado radio station, but sticking with that job means enduring the importunities of Jordan Estill, who wants to marry her. And going east with Molly Flanagan means taking a big chance for a big job—and the possibility of finding Martin, whom she has met only once, and would give everything she has to meet again. So she will go.

Chapter 13
New York

THE interview with Jordan, which she had tried to escape, was hard.

"You're hard. You're unfeeling. You care for nothing but climbing to the top," he accused her; his ordinary, rather shy calm broken to tatters. "You love me—but you love career more. You'd rather trample down all your own human feelings and stand and sing into a little piece of tin and have applause, than have anything real—wifehood, motherhood, normal human contacts."

She stared at him. She had somehow supposed that her real reason for going to New York was written across her forehead in letters, and here was Jordan lecturing her for being a hard career girl! She wanted to laugh—and then she felt like crying, a little. So she did neither one.

She said, more sharply than she meant, "You're like all the rest of the men in the world. You think because I want to do something else more than marry you, that it applies to all the other men there are."

He looked at her for a moment as if she were speaking in a strange language.

"You mean—you mean you want to find somebody who has more than I have—who can give you more than I can give you?" There was no way of explaining. Nevertheless she tried once more.

"No, Jordan. It's just that, while I don't love you enough to marry you, I might love some other man enough."

"You do love me," he said. "You love me, only you don't know it, you have some crazy idea in your head from the movies. We've gone round together and been good friends, genial, and you've known I've loved you. I've seen your attitude to me. You couldn't have been my pal—my girl—all this time without really loving me. You think you're the kind that can have some impossible emotion, go off the deep end, you're not. You aren't that kind. I tell you, you're a career woman."

He had, she saw, an image of her in his mind that no amount of argument on her part would turn into a truer one. He wanted her like that—cool to him because she could not be anything else to anyone.

She said once more, "But if I think I am, Jordan, it is the same as if it were true. You'll have to let me find out for myself."

Unfortunately he snapped at this.

"That means there's a good chance still. All right, darling, I'll wait." His eyes were emotional behind the glasses. "I'll wait forever. I know you'll come back to me. If you don't—well, I'll come to you."

They were back at Jerry's, leaning to each other across one of the little glass tables. She dropped her head. There was no use arguing.

Pageant of Light

THE drive was fun. Molly had made it before. Eileen never had. They stopped at tourist camps, mostly, but once or twice they slept in the car, and one glorious night—when it was that or a rainstorm outdoors—spent good money on a hotel in Kansas.

And eventually they were in New York State. Buffalo—Utica—Albany—the Albany Post Road, the Cross County Parkway, the Brock Parkway sliding invisibly into the Sawmill River and Henry Hudson Parkways.

Finally, a last toll bridge, and the rattling, staunch little car with its piled luggage and two excited girls was sliding down along the Hudson River one early September evening, between the tall apartment houses of Riverside Drive, and the river and the ships with the Palisades, all electric signs and far-off romantic whistles.

"Oh, Molly, the lights! It's like a pageant!" Eileen gasped. Molly, fortunately, was driving. Eileen's eyes focused with excitement on the starry strings, on the apartments with their hundreds of lighted windows, turned eagerly back again to the signs that winked off and on forever.

"Well, of course—Molly laughed and was a little motherly—I've been watching that sign blink for quite a while. I used to have a boy friend that was nuts on sitting on a Riverside bench and watching it."

"Molly."

"What—what sort of people live on Riverside Drive?"

"What sort? Well—all sorts. Nice. But not in a majority, so-called, and not very many."

Molly's keen amused blue eyes fixed Eileen—"Of the sort of playboys who cable from New Zealand just to say 'how's tricks.' You'll find them farther east, old pal."

Eileen colored.

"I—I didn't—" she began to say, and stopped, because she had.

"Cheer up, my sweet," Molly continued. She ran down the ramp at Fifty-seventh Street.

"We're heading to his hideout right now. Swank, that's me." She whisked the car expertly between thundering trucks and whizzing sedans east on Fifty-seventh and took a long breath of relaxation.

"Gosh, that's a corner when you've been playing round desert trails, where the worst you can find is a couple Weigands."

"But Molly, for heaven's sake, you're not taking an apartment east."

"There's east and east," Molly said. "I don't know whether I told you our plans about the flower shop. We've got a chance for a place on Third Avenue, in the Fifties. Just about perfect, if you ask me: Near enough to Park and the smart cross-street apartments so that people who want flowers cheap can slide out and get them. You wouldn't think how many people that get their names in the society columns and the night-club list want to buy things cheap, from delicatessen to posies."

She drove expertly on.

By the next night she and Eileen were as settled into New York as though they had always belonged there.

Molly knew her neighborhood. Without much trouble the girls found a fourth-story apartment in a brownstone house, on the edge of the better-class tenements, but also not too far from the place where the flower shop, that goal of Molly's ambitions, was to be.

Molly left Eileen to settle in. It felt a little cramped after the spacious, sunlit rooms in the white apartment house in Denver.

You climbed three flights of stairs. There was a narrow slip of a bedroom for one of them; a living room which the other would have to use; a bath between, old, too roomy, lighted by a skylight; there was a kitchenette which was far from being roomy enough. It was furnished rather gloomily and casually; a cot bed in one room, a davenport in the other, various sorts of chairs and draperies that Eileen decided to change whether it proved extravagant or not.

But, standing at the little window, she could see the East River. The boats went up and down, lighted and lovely. The stars showed, in a scrap of sky beyond. Eileen had always lived inland, and this was wonderful.

All The Chances

NEW YORK. All the chances in the world. Chances for a bright, pretty, well-trained girl who had always had chances hurled at her. Big radio networks. Big office buildings. . . . And, somewhere, sometime, a gay, swift-voiced, gray-eyed man calling her or wiring her after a broadcast, or perhaps the same man coming in to interview one of the big men in an office where she was the smart, efficient secretary or even office manager.

And seeing her, in her low-cut satin, moving away from the mike; or in the junior partner's office, fresh from dictation in her smart, office frock, poised and alert and charmingly capable. . . .

She was a romantic idiot, she told herself, moving hastily away from the window, and shutting down the sash, so that the dust smelt sharply flying from the curtains. She began to sing to herself as she moved round the shabby room rearranging the furniture.

Molly shot in, unbreathed from the stairs, but full of excitement.

"Was it time I got here?" she demanded rhetorically. "What do you suppose was happening?"

She whisked her hat and coat methodically off, and had them hung in the little closet.

"I was just in time. That dope of a Ris had decided that it was too much of a risk to take out notes to swing his half of the shops. And his brother Nick says, 'Well, Molly, you know how he is. I couldn't swing it alone. I sure am grateful to you.'"

"You're the only person I know that can build a fire under Ris."

"How did you come to know Ris and Nick?" Eileen inquired curiously.

"Went to school with them. Pop and Mom split up when we were kids; Pop went to New York and took two of us along." Molly explained casually.

"After a while he went back to Plute, but by that time I was sort of holed-in in the big city. Once you get used to it, you hate to leave. What shall we do, go out or get something in? Does the gas ring work?"

She investigated, found it did, and they decided on getting something in. Eileen thought with a certain amusement of Molly, and her height of ambition—cashier in a delicatessen, wife to a small florist.

Well, being happy was what counted, after all. And if happiness, to you, meant a dreamy-eyed young Greek in an ill-fitting dress coat who had to be driven into earning his living, instead of a laughing gray-eyed man in flying clothes, well, it was just the way you felt.

Eileen had money enough to carry her a while, as she looked for work. But next morning, on the tide of excitement at living in New York, she took her letters of introduction and started out to storm the city.
